The Journal of Catholic Higher Education is the peer-reviewed, interdisciplinary, semi-annual journal of the Association of Catholic Colleges and Universities. It is the only international journal dedicated solely to the distribution of scholarly work and commentary with a focus on contemporary Catholic higher education in the United States and around the world.

Articles appearing in JCHE are submitted by authors (individual and multiple authors welcome) and proceed through a blind peer-review selection process. Occasionally, the text of a speech is published because of its significance to the field.

Mission

The mission of the Journal of Catholic Higher Education (formerly Current Issues in Catholic Higher Education) is to advance the knowledge and practice of Catholic higher education in the United States and internationally. It does this through the publication of articles on a wide range of topics related to Catholic higher education such as original empirical research, theoretical exchanges, philosophical critiques, policy analysis, and practical applications for Catholic colleges and universities.

Manuscript Submissions

JCHE seeks original compositions that exhibit high scholarly quality. They should contain a thesis, argument, case study, historical account, theological application, philosophical contribution, or other form of expert analysis.

Published manuscripts represent a wide range of interests such as: the role of Catholic higher education, Catholic identity, higher education policy changes, and social justice. No worthy topic related to Catholic higher education is beyond the scope of the journal.

Each manuscript will proceed through a blind peer-review process unless the article is not relevant to the journal's mission or patently does not meet scholarly standards.

Manuscript submissions can be made at any time through JCHE's submission webpage: <http://jche.msubmit.net/cgi-bin/main.plex>

Subscriptions

The Journal of Catholic Higher Education is published in the winter and summer of each year and is available to institutions and individuals at an annual rate of $40.00 (plus shipping and handling). Presidents and libraries of member institutions automatically receive copies of JCHE as a benefit of membership. Back issues are also available, at $20.00 each.
